

Preparation of the ASC Sergeant at Arms

DUTIES OF AN AIHEC STUDENT CONGRESS OFFICER

SERGEANT AT ARMS

The ASC Sergeant at Arms maintains the integrity and progress of the ASC meetings.

- Maintain a clear line of communication between officers: the ASC officers are spread across vast distances and meet 20 times at the most throughout the year through teleconferences. For this reason, the ASC Sergeant at Arms will be responsible for making sure that a clear discussion can be conducted at the meetings and to notify any officer if their telephone is unmuted when they are not speaking.
- Holds the ASC accountable to the approved agenda: the ASC officers occasionally fall off topic from the agenda. For this reason, the ASC Sergeant at Arms will remind the officers of the topic at hand and to leave side topics for another agenda at another meeting.
- Holds the ASC accountable to the Robert's Rules of Orders when voting on motions: the ASC must follow a set of rules established and used by many companies and governing bodies across the world. For this reason, the ASC Sergeant at Arms will need to remind the ASC of the procedures for motions and voting if the ASC starts to violate or circumnavigate the procedures.

The ASC Sergeant at Arms acts as an enforcer for the agreed-upon rules and standards. Without which, the ASC cannot conduct business effectively or efficiently. The ASC Sergeant at Arms also represents their tribal college and they will participate in all relevant discussions, suggest and work on initiatives, and will accept tasks delineated to them to achieve specific goals for the congress.

At any time, there are four ASC co-advisors which the officers may rely upon for advice to fulfill their duties.

- Carmen Henan, Dean of Students, Institute of American Indian Arts, more than 5 years advising the ASC
- Juan Perez, Athletic Director and Coach, Salish Kootenai College, more than 10 years advising the ASC
- Marvene Tom, Manager, Tribal College Journal, more than 3 years advising the ASC
- Alex Grandon, Student Services Associate, AIHEC, more than 3 years advising the ASC

AIHEC 2015 Student Congress Report

Hello Indian Country!

The officers of the American Indian Higher Education Consortium (AIHEC) Student Congress were elected at the AIHEC Student Spring Conference in Billings, Montana in March 2015. The officers are President Dwight Carlston of NTU, Vice-President Robin Maxkii of SKC, Secretary Cara Moulton of SBC, Treasurer Charnelle LaDoux UTTC, Historian Sarah Zavala of NICC, Sergeant at Arms Robert LeDoux of UTTC, and the Midwest Representative Falon Torrez of NICC, Northwest Representative Jennifer Cordova-James of NWIC and Southwest Representative Lee Honie of Dine College.

"I am truly blessed to hold this position as Student Congress President along with its great responsibility, because every TCU student should have the opportunity to learn about their people, history and future. Each TCU student has the ability to become what he or she wants to become so that they can make a difference in their well respected Nations." President Dwight Carlston

The 2014-20145 ASC have completed an ambitious and successful year with the following initiatives at hand such as:

- ✚ President Carlston directed the Food Sovereignty initiative along with all congress members. All Tribal Colleges or Universities or student(s) attending a TCU were welcome to participate in the ASC Food Sovereignty Initiative. The goal of the initiative is to provide native communities the opportunity to explain their previous efforts in food sovereignty and/or extension/outreach/wellness and determine ways to continue to influence their communities toward sustainable local food resources if awarded grant funds. Five colleges were funded in 2014 and ASC is ready to fund seven more colleges with this grant in 2015.
- ✚ Southwest Representative Lee Honie developed the Cultural Exchange initiative which is to unify collaboration and to help establish a confederacy between every Native American tribe by using the full potential that lies within our tribally-controlled institutions to grow as nations and produce our own scholars. The goal of the Cultural Exchange Initiative was to get more tribal college students involved in nation-building and helping other tribes in rebuilding their nations. This initiative will increase potential of interaction between K-12 and college students to inspire, create, and lead a way for future leaders. The initiative will also establish communication with tribal elders to increase the power that lies within the voice of the people. The overall importance of working together should begin from our own communities.
- ✚ Secretary Moulton started the ASC awareness initiative. “AIHEC awareness is a project to raise awareness of what AIHEC stands for – the advocacy, movement, and alumni aspects of it” states Moulton. The ASC created a video to share their stories of TCU’s and ASC it could be found on the AIHEC YouTube Channel.

- Summer 2014, the ASC along with several other TCU students attended the SAIGE Student Leadership Conference to participate in enhancing their professional development with workshops and other training from Native American professionals in Albuquerque, New Mexico. Also during this time Sergeant at Arms, Robert LeDoux, demonstrated how the ceremonial drum is made as part of the cultural exchange. A video of the demonstration appears on the AIHEC YouTube Channel.

“SAIGE 2014 in Albuquerque, NM, was a great experience for me. Being able to learn important skills in life including financial, business, and decision making was very beneficial. I appreciate all of the Government employers for teaching us what types of job opportunities are available for Native Americans. I definitely recommend dedicated and motivated students to apply for this conference as this would benefit them as well.” Adrianna Hoffman student at NICC

- Student Congress traveled to Anchorage, Alaska in October to attend the AIHEC Fall Board Meeting and work on initiatives face-to-face. The congress also addressed the Student Activities Committee with a proposal to include Disciplinary Actions for officers of the AIHEC Student Congress Constitution and Bylaws.

- ✚ Winter of 2015, ASC attended the AIHEC 2015 Capitol Hill Visits in Washington D.C. All 37 Tribal Colleges and Universities stood before their state Congress members to advocate for three major requests. One to honor treaties and tribal sovereignty, also to plan for funding equity by first promoting the adoption of a five year plan to address long term TCU inequalities in federal programs and to ensure equitable TCU participation in federal programs for IHE. Lastly, they advocated ensuring ongoing operations to provide forward funding for the five remaining TCU's not so funded.

🚩 Today, ASC is gearing up for the 2015 AIHEC Student Spring conference that will be held in Albuquerque, New Mexico. ASC will be hosting the 2nd annual Poetry Slam to hold Saturday, March 14, 2015. The AIHEC Student Congress welcomes each and every one of you to the American Indian Higher Education Consortium Spring Conference 2015!

As AIHEC Student Congress Historian, I have had one of the best years of my life documenting and taking part in everything ASC has done thus far.

Pinagigi, Thank You,
